TERMED WORST WINTER'S STORM

Snow and Driving Wind Which Piles
it in Drifts 15 Feet Deep Disrupts
Business Generally

TRAINS MANY HOURS LATE

Many Schools Dismissed Because of
Small Attendance—Anderson Tp.
School Hacks Lost.

The worst storm of the winter hit Rushville and Rush county yesterday afternoon and continued today. The blizzard was accompanied by a drop in temperature of something like 30 degrees. The mercury was up to 40 degrees Sunday morning and during the afternoon a steady drop was noticed. This morning it was ten above and at noon five.

The cold was nothing to compare with the wind and snow. The storm came from the east. The snow, accompanied by a strong wind, made walking and traffic almost impossible. The streets, sidewalks and country roads were banked high in snow, many of the drifts being ten and twelve feet in height.

The storm was general over this section of the country. Trains on all roads entering the city were late.
The C. H. & D. did not have an eastbound train all morning and the Big Four was almost as bad off. The southbound Big Four passenger train, due here at 8:03 o'clock this morning was caught in a drift back of a freight train between Knightstown and Shirley and did not arrive until almost eleven o'clock.

The interurban line was running on schedule up until the middle of the morning and then its troubles began. The eastbound cars due here at 11:42 and 12:20 were annulled and later cars ran irregularly. Both trains on the L. E. & W. were annulled today.

The blizzard played havoc with the schools of the county and city. Many were dismissed because of the small attendance. Several schools did not have a pupil to report. The country roads were almost impassible because of the drifts and very few people ventured out.

The rural mail carriers were saved

WHOLE STATE IN GRIP OF STORM

Indianapolis is Practically Isolated
Because of Inability of Cars to Enter the City.

SUFFERING FROM THE COLD

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Feb. 23.—Indiana and Indianapolis were today in the grip of the worst storm of the winter,
according to reports from interurban and city traction sources, because of the high wind and heavy drifting snow, which has continued since yesterday morning. The city was isolated because of the inability of interurban cars to enter the city.

The high wind and snow caused much suffering though the mercury was at 11 above. A girl giving the name of Miss Springer of Connors-ville, here attending a millinery opening, fainted several times in a West Washington street store today after being nearly overcome by the cold.
The hands of Mable Murray, 9 years old, were frozen.

MRS. DAVID M'KEE IS DEAD

Passed Away Last Night at Home
In Connorsville.

Word was received here this morning of the death of Mrs. Ella McKee, wife of David W. McKee, a well known Connorsville attorney. Mrs.
McKee died last night about nine o'clock at her home in Connorsville.
Little of the details are known but it is thought that her death was very sudden. Mr. McKee is a brother of Mrs. Samuel H. Trabue and Mrs.
Samuel Logan of this city. Besides her husband, Mrs. McKee is survived by four children, Mrs. Elmer Green of Newcastle, Mrs. Ethel Thomas and the Misses Grace and Louise McKee. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

SECOND ATTEMPT TO MEET TONIGHT

Chamber of Commerce Due to Hear
Report of By-Laws Committee
at Eight O'clock.

IN COURT HOUSE ASSEMBLY

The second attempt to get a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce members for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee on by-laws will be made tonight, although indications today were that weather conditions would be decidedly against the effort. It is desired that the committee report as soon as possible so as to complete the organization work.

Members all received cards this morning through the mail announcing the meeting for the court house assembly room tonight at eight o'clock.
The meeting was originally set for Tuesday night, but because of the men's banquet that night it was thought best to postpone it.

A big attendance of members is urged because it is the purpose of the organization that there should be a free discussion of the rules which will govern the body.

DELEGATION IS NOW COMPLETE

Democrats Have Named Representatives to State Convention and Selected Committeemen.

LARGE CROWDS AT MEETINGS

Other Democratic meetings in the county Saturday to select precinct committeemen and delegates to the State convention report good crowds.
At the Anderson township convention held in Milroy, the largest crowd since 1880 was reported to have been present. Brint Boling was selected committeeman from the south precinct and Riley Rogers from the north. The delegate to the State convention is W. S. Mercer and the alternate is R. J. Whaley.

In Center township Bert Benner was selected as delegate to the State convention and George B. Clark, alternate. The committeemen are Omer Abernathy and Walter Rhodes.
In Posey township the committeemen are Eli Collins and Clark Offutt. The delegate to the convention is Elihu
Price and the alternate is Eli Collins.

New York has several women members of the bar.

PEOPLE NOT RESPONSIBLE

Rev. A. D. Batchelor Says There is Wrong Impression About Law Enforcement.

IT'S DUTY OF PROSECUTOR

Ministers of City Discuss Liquor
Law Violations in Pulpits
Sunday Night.

Ministers of the city Sunday night discussed law enforcement in Rushville from the various pulpits. The question was brought to a head by the recent raids of the police which resulted in two charges being placed.

At the St. Paul Methodist church
the Rev. Batchelor spoke from Prov.
XXIX: 18, "Where there is no vision
the people cast off restraint."

He said, "We need a vision of the right. Without this the teaching of morality is disputed, its authority denied and human rights disregarded. We also need the vision incorporated in law. Some men live above the law. They need no restraint.
They would keep the law if there was no outward statute. But others live beneath the law. They must be restrained by the fear which the law inspires. Without law these would cast off every restraint."

"We need a vision on the enforcement of the law. An officer should be a terror to evil-doers. Good government depends more on the men behind the law than the law itself.
An official takes an oath to enforce the law. He cannot be excused on the ground of public sentiment. Public sentiment is a difficult thing to ascertain. Sometimes it is no more than the clamor of the lawless who desire to cast off restraint. Besides, no official takes an oath to support public sentiment, but to enforce the law."

"We need a vision on the prosecution of the lawless. As a rule the liquor men are the most lawless.
All over the land they have considered themselves an exception to the law. No business gives our courts so much trouble as the liquor business. It is a business without a vision and a conscience, hence it it casts off restraint. Liquor men who violate the law should be prosecuted as vigorously as other criminals."

"When a prosecutor does not do this, he is either in sympathy with the business, or has been bribed by it, or is afraid of it. In either case he is unworthy of his office. It is unfair for prosecutors to put the burden of prosecution on the people. It is not the people's business to hunt up the evidence and to file
the charges. The prosecutor is elected to do this. If it is a case of murder a prosecutor will be diligent in searching out evidence. If it is a case of lawless liquor men, good citizens are told to hunt up evidence and file charges."

"In such case the office is pros-tituted to the protection of the lawless instead of the protection of the people. A town can easily rid itself of the 'blind tiger' nuisance with a vigorous enforcement of the law, and with a persistent prosecution. But where there is no such vision the lawless will cast off restraint."

"Municipal Patriotism on Trial"
was the subject selected by the Rev.
J. B. Meacham at the First Presbyterian church. He spoke in part as follows:

"The Bible is the greatest law book that has ever been printed. It is all in the interest of man's best welfare. There are statutes in it covering every part of man's nature

SAYS GIRL IS NOT HIS CHILD

Dr. W. A. Winters Arrives in Sprng-

Not Catherine Winters

(By United Press.)

Springdale, Ark., Feb. 23.—
Dr. W. A. Winters of Newcastle, Ind., arrived here today and said that the girl known as Lucy Stuart, taken into custody as his missing daughter, was not his child.

Dr. Winters, on his arrival here, was taken at once to the child by a representative of the Newspaper Enterprise association. He said that the girl bore a trifling resemblance to his daughter.

He expressed great disappointment at the failure of his mission.

Disappointed, but still hopeful that his girl would be found, Dr. Winters left here today for the north.

"If Catherine is still alive,"
he said, "this is only one more disappointment. I want to thank the American nation for the interest it is taking."

For all his hopeful statement,
Dr. Winters was downcast by this latest disappointment.
There was nothing of a resemblance between the two girls.

Owing to the excitement which has prevailed since the story of the finding of Catherine here had been started, Dr. Winters took the girl into the drawing room of the car and talked with her. She is in a deplorable condition. Following her interview with Winters, she was taken back to Huntsville. She will be taken from Stuart and given a to a more responsible person.

The clew to the whereabouts of little Catherine Winters, missing almost a year from her home in Newcastle, which today failed, was the most plausible yet received and accounted for the hasty trip of Dr. W.
A. Winters to Arkansas to make sure whether the girl known as Lucy
Stuart was his child.

George Stuart, age fifty, was arrested Saturday near Huntsville, Ark., with the little girl in his possession. He finally admitted, dispatches say, the girl was Catherine Winters, and that she had been kidnapped by another man, whose name he would not divulge, and brought to him outside of Newcastle.

There have been several clews recently, but this one looked more like there might be more element of truth in it than any others. The only point where the story seemed weak was in that Stuart asserted he married Dr. Winters' divorced wife, the mother of Catherine. This could not be, as Dr. and Mrs. Winters still live together.

The most recent clew that looked reasonable, came last week when a girl resembling Catherine, going under the name of Rose Davis, was found at Middleport, Ohio, but Dr.
Winters was doomed to disappointment again when he arrived.

An unusual "tip" from Sacramento, Cal., came here last week to search for Catherine in a shanty on the "old wagon road" five miles out

AMERICAN NOT MURDERED

Gustav Bauch in Prison in Mexico and Will Be Tried.

(By United Press.)

Washington, Feb. 23.—Gustav Bauch, the American citizen thought to have been murdered in Mexico by Rebels, is in prison at Chihuahua, the state department was informed today. He is held pending a decision on appeal to the supreme court following a verdict by court marshal of guilty of being a spy and a sentence of death.

ENGLAND WILL KEEP OUT

Statement Today Says Intervention
in Mexico is Impossible.

(By United Press.)

London, Eng., Feb. 23.—The British government has no intention of intervening in Mexico, according to a formal statement made in the House of Commons this afternoon by a representative of the foreign office. Under Secretary Akland said: "Though conditions in Mexico today are causing the greatest prejudice to British interests, we do not propose any attempt at British intervention, which would be futile and impolitic."

SITUATION TERMED GRAVE

Senator Shively and Wilson Discuss
Mexican Question Today.

(By United Press.)

Washington, Feb. 23.—Senator
Shively, acting chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, conferred at length with President Wilson today. He stated the Mexican situation was too grave for public discussion and that a satisfactory solution would be worked out.

It is understood he told the President certain senators are greatly wrought up over the killing of W. S.
Benton, a British subject. Some, he said, had characterized it as wanton murder. It is understood he asked Wilson to announce a complete and independent investigation would be made and the result made public.

DIVORCE CASE IS HEARD

Judge Megee Listens to Evidence in Douthit Suit.

Judge Megee heard the divorce suit of Mrs. Ora E. Douthit against Walter A. Douthit this afternoon.
Several witnesses testified for the plaintiff. She alleged cruel and inhuman treatment and the complaint stated that he deserted her without cause. The defendant was not in court but was represented by George W. Curtus of Indianapolis. John E.
Osborn and John A. Titsworth represented the plaintiff. Mrs. Douthit is the daughter of George Foster, a well known Rush county farmer, living in the southern part of the county.

FATHER OF LOCAL MAN DEAD.

Word has been received here of the death of Joel O. Jamieson, father of the Rev. A. W. Jamieson, at his home in Monmouth, Illinois. Mr. Jamieson was eighty-three years old and death came after a brief illness from la grippe and heart disease. The funeral services were held Saturday.

Mr. Jamieson was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, April 30, 1831. He had been a resident of Monmouth for the past twenty-six years. He is survived by his widow, six sons, five of whom are preachers and one daughter.

FINDING FAVORS I. & C. COMPANY

Trainmen Are Making no Comments
On Ruling of Public Service Commission on Grievances.

WAGE INCREASE IS REFUSED

Decision Points Out That Practically All of the Earnings Go
For Operating Expense.

Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction company trainmen today were not making any comments publicly on the decision returned Saturday night by the public service commission in which an increase in wages and a petition to operate the Shelbyville and local divisions separately were denied.

These were the two of the twenty-one grievances the trainmen presented to the company which could not be settled and were left to the state commission as an arbitration board. The agreement is binding for three years. I. & C. officials thought the decision very fair and the board expresses the hope that the men will see the justness of it.

"We desire to say in the beginning," reads the decision, "that the spirit of co-operation and friendly feeling between the trainmen and the president of the traction company, as disclosed upon the hearing and at all stages of their proceedings before this board of arbitration, is worthy of commendation; the trainmen have manifested a high sense of their duty and relationship to their employer, and their employer has shown an appreciation of this devotion on the part of the employe that is well worthy of consideration by employer and employer everywhere."

"The traction company has two

Truth Telling

Advertisements

Quite a natural text for a little talk on the anniversary of Washington's birthday.

There is some sentiment and also good, plain, business sense in the idea that an advertisement must be an exact statement of fact—that it must be without exaggeration.

The old policy of "let the buyer beware" has become obsolete. In the same way the tendency to have alluring advertising without the goods to back it up has gone into the discard.

It did not pay.

There is more care exercised today in the preparation of an advertisement than ever before.

People are greater readers of advertising than ever before, and are more severe critics.

They know the ring of the true from the noise of the counterfeit.

The advertising in the good newspapers like The Daily Republican is subjected to careful scrutiny. Publishers are jealous of the character of their columns. Standards are getting higher—the business world is getting more exacting
in its ideals and its practices.

CHAPTER VII.

The Mayor Casts a Shadow Before.

QUICKLY the girl in the corduroy suit leaned toward Mr. Magee. She whispered, and her tone was troubled:

"Stand by me. I'm afraid I'll need your help."

"What's the matter?" inquired Magee.

"I haven't much of any right here, I guess. But I had to come."

"But your key?"

"I fear my—my press agent—stole it."

"Never mind," he said very gently; "I'll see you through."

Quimby was standing over Mr. Bland. "How about you?" he asked.

"Call up Andy Rutter and ask about me," replied Bland in the tone of one who prefers war to peace.

"I work for Mr. Bentley," said Quimby. "Rutter hasn't any authority here. He isn't to be manager next season, I understand. However, the professor wants me to let you stay. He says he'll be responsible."

Mr. Bland looked in open mouthed astonishment at the unexpected sponsor he had found. "And you?" went on Quimby to the women.

"Why?" began Miss Norton.

"Absolutely all right," said Mr. Magee. "They come from Hal Bentley, like myself. He's put them in my care. I'll answer for them." He saw the girl's eyes. They spoke her thanks.

Mr. Quimby shook his head as one in a dream.

"All this is beyond me—way beyond," he murmured. "I'm going to write all about it to Mr. Bentley, and I suppose I got to let you stay till I hear from him. I think he ought to come up here if he can."

"The more the merrier," said Mr. Magee, reflecting cheerfully that the Bentleys were in Florida at last accounts.

"Come, mamma," said Miss Norton, rising, "let's go up and pick out a suit. There's one I used to have a few years ago. You can see the hermit's shack from the windows. By the way, Mr. Magee, will you send Mr. Peters up to us? He may be able to help us get settled."

"Ahem!" muttered Mr. Magee. "I'll have a talk with Peters. To be quite frank, I anticipate trouble. You see, the hermit of Baldpate doesn't approve of women."

"The idiot!" cried Mrs. Norton.

"Delicious!" laughed the girl.

"I shall ask Peters to serve you," said Magee. "I shall appeal to his gallant side. But I must proceed gently. This is his first day as our cook, and you know how necessary a good first impression is with a new cook. I'll appeal to his better nature."

"Don't do it!" cried the girl. "Don't emphasize us to him in any way or he may exercise his right as cook and leave. Just ignore us. We'll play at being our own bellboys."

"Ignore you?" cried Mr. Magee. "What herculean tasks you set! I'm not equal to that one!" He picked up their traveling bags and led the way upstairs. "I'm something of a bellboy myself when roused," he said.

The girl selected suit 17, at the farther end of the corridor from Magee's apartments. "It's the very one I used to have years and years ago—at least two or three years ago," she said.

"Isn't it stupid? All the furniture in a heap!"

"And cold," said Mrs. Norton. "My land, I wish I was back by my own fire."

"I'll make you regret your words, Mrs. Norton!" cried Magee. He threw up the windows, pulled off his coat and set to work on the furniture. The girl bustled about, lightening his work by her smile.

"I hope you don't expect a tip," the girl said, laughing.

"I do," he said, coming closer and speaking in a voice that was not for the ear of the chaperon. "I want a tip on this—do you really act?"

She looked at him steadily.

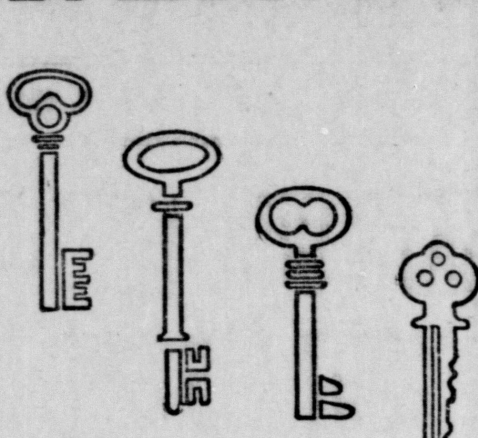

"Once," she said, "when I was sixteen, I appeared in an amateur play at school. It was my first and last appearance on the stage."

"Thanks, lady," remarked Mr. Magee in imitation of the bellboy he was supposed to be. He sought No. 7. There he made himself again presentable, after which he descended to the office.

Mr. Bland sat reading the New York paper before the fire. From the little card room and the parlor, the two rooms to the right and left of the hotel's front door, Quimby had brought forth extra chairs. He stood now by the large chair that held Professor Bolton, engaged in conversation with that gentleman.

"Yes," he was saying, "I lived three years in Reuton and five years in New York. It took me eight years—eight years to realize the truth."

KEYS TO BALDPATE

"I heard about it from John Bentley," the professor said gently.

"He's been pretty kind to me, Mr. Bentley has," replied Quimby. "When the money was all gone he offered me this job. Once the Quimbys owned most of the land around Baldpate mountain. It all went in those eight years. To think that it took all those years for me to find it out!"

"If I'm not impertinent, Quimby," put in Magee, "to find what out?"

"That what I wanted, the railroad men didn't want," replied Quimby bitterly, "and that was—the safety of the public. You see, I invented a new rail joint, one that was a great improvement on the old kind. I had sort of an idea, when I was doing it—an idea of service to the world—you know. God, what a joke! I sold all the Quimby lands, and went to Reuton, and then to New York to place it. Not one of the railroad men but admitted that it was an improvement, and a big one—and not one but fought like mad to keep me from getting it down where the public would see it. They didn't want the expense of a change."

Mr. Quimby looked out at the sunlit stretch of snow.

"Eight years," he repeated. "I fought and pleaded. No, I begged—that was the word—I begged. You'd be surprised to know the names of some of the men who kept me waiting in their private offices and sneered at me over their polished desks. They turned me down—every one. Some of them played me—as though I'd been a fish. They referred me to other ends of the same big game, laughing in their sleeves. I guess, at the knowledge of how hopeless it was. Oh, they made a fine fool of me."

"You might have put down some of your joints at your own expense," suggested the professor.

"Didn't I try?" cried Quimby. "Do you think they'd let me? No, the public might see them and demand them everywhere. Once I thought I had convinced somebody. It was down in Reuton—the Suburban railway. There was a rustic as Mr. Bland let his paper fall to the floor. 'Old Henry Thornhill was president of the road—he is yet, I guess—but young Hayden and a fellow named David Kendrick were running it. Kendrick was on my side—he almost had Hayden. They were going to let me lay a stretch of track with my joints. Then something happened. Maybe you remember. Kendrick disappeared in the night—he's never been seen since.'"

"I do remember," said the professor softly.

"Hayden turned me down," went on Quimby. "The money was all gone. So I came back to Upper Asquewan—caretaker of an inn that overlooks the property my father owned—the property I squandered for a chance to save human lives."

He moved away, and the men sat in silence for a time. Then the professor spoke very gently:

"Poor devil—to have had his dream of service—and then grow old on Baldpate."

"Well, everything's shipshape in the kitchen," announced the hermit cheerfully, hurrying into the room. "I couldn't go without seeing to that. I wish you the best of luck, gentlemen, and goodbye."

"Goodbye?" cried the professor.

"By the gods, he's leaving us!" almost wept Mr. Bland.

"It can't be," said Mr. Magee.

"It has to be," said the hermit of Baldpate, solemnly shaking his head. "I'd like to stay with you, and I would if they hadn't come. But here they are, and when women come in the door I fly out of the window, as the saying is."

"But, Peters," pleaded Magee, "you are not going to leave us in the hole like this?"

"Sorry," replied Peters. "I can please men, but I can't please women. I tried to please one once—but let the dead past bury its dead. I live on Baldpate in a shack to escape the sex, and it wouldn't be consistent for me to stay here now. I got to go. I hate to, like a dog, but I got to."

"Peters," said Mr. Magee, "I'm surprised. After giving your word to stay! And who knows—you may be able to gather valuable data for your book. Stick around. These women won't bother you. And we'll pay you beyond the dreams of avarice of a Broadway chef. Won't we, gentlemen?"

The others nodded. Mr. Peters visibly weakened.

"Well," he began. "I—His eyes were on the stairs. Mr. Magee also looked in that direction and saw the girl of the station smiling down. She no longer wore coat and hat, and the absence of the latter revealed a glory of golden hair that became instantly a rival to the sunshine in that drear bare room.

"No, Peters," she said, "you mustn't. We couldn't permit it. Mamma and I will go."

She continued to smile at the obviously dazzled Peters. Suddenly he spoke in a determined tone:

"No, don't do that. I'll stay." Then he turned to Magee and continued for that gentleman's ear alone: "Doggone it, we're all alike! We resolve and resolve and then one of them looks at us and it's all forgot. I had a friend who advertised for a wife—leastways, he was a friend until he advertised. He got ninety-two replies, seventy of 'em from married men advising against the step. 'I'm cured,' he says to me. 'Not for me.' Did he keep his word? No. A week after he married a widow just to see if what the seventy said was true. I'm mortal. I hang around the buzzsaw. If you give me a little money, I'll go down to the village and buy the provisions for lunch."

Gleefully Mr. Magee started the hermit on his way, and then went over to where the girl stood at the foot of the stairs.

They went together to the kitchen, found a pail and filled it with icy water from the pump at the rear of the inn. Inside once more, Mr. Magee remarked thoughtfully:

"Who would have guessed a week ago that today I would be climbing the broad staircase of a summer hotel carrying a pail of water for a lady fair?"

They paused on the landing.

"There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio," smiled the girl, "than are dreamed of, even by novelists." Mr. Magee started. Had she recognized him as the Magee of light fiction? Her face went suddenly grave. She came closer. "I can't help wondering," she said, "which side you are on?"

"Which side of what?" asked Magee.

"Why, of this," she answered, waving her hand toward the office below.

"I don't understand," objected Mr. Magee.

"Let's not be silly," she replied. "You know what brought me here. I know what brought you. There are three sides, and only one is honest. I hope, so very much, that you are on that side."

"Upon my word"—began Magee.

"Will it interest you to know," she continued, "I saw the big mayor of Reuton in the village this morning? With him was his shadow, Lou Max. Let's see—you had the first key. Mr. Bland the second, the professor the third and I had the fourth. The mayor has the fifth key, of course. He'll be here soon."

"The mayor," gasped Mr. Magee.

"Really, I haven't the slightest idea what you mean. I'm here to work!"

"Very well," said the girl coldly, "if you wish it that way." They came to the door of 17, and she took the pail from Mr. Magee's hand. "Thanks."

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" asked Magee, indicating the pail.

"I'll see you at luncheon, sir," she said, "responded Miss Norton, and the door of 17 slammed shut.

Mr. Magee returned to No. 7 and thoughtfully stirred the fire. The tangle of events bade fair to swamp him.

"The mayor of Reuton," he mused, "has the fifth key. What in the name of common sense is going on? It's too much even for melodramatic me." He leaned back in his chair. "Anyhow, I like her eyes," he said. "And I shouldn't want to be quoted as disapproving of her hair either. I'm on her side, whichever it may be."

"The mayor has the fifth key."

CHRONIC COLDS

Are Contracted by Changeable Weather. A Simple Remedy.

Sudden changes are particularly trying for old people or those who suffer from a weakened, run-down condition, chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, but if such persons would only apply common sense methods in the treatment of their condition, much discomfort and suffering might be avoided.

The most essential thing to do is to build up strength, enrich the blood, increase vital resistance and to accomplish this nothing equals Vinol, our cod liver and iron tonic.

Mrs. M. J. Grimes of Springfield, Ohio, says: "I was badly run-down, nervous and weak, and while in this condition I contracted a heavy cold and rheumatism. Vinol was recommended and I am happy to say it cured my cold and restored me to health again."

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds should try a bottle of Vinol. We will return your money if it does not help you. F. B. Johnson and Company, druggists, Rushville, Indiana.

P. S. For Eczema of Scalp try our Saxo Salve. We guarantee it.

Are Women Naturally Despondent?

A prominent writer so claims. Women are constituted with a delicate organism and in nine cases out of ten mental depression may be attributed to an abnormal condition of the system which expresses itself in nervousness, sleeplessness, backache, headaches, causing constant misery and as a result despondency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, is the one great remedy for this condition. It goes to the root of the trouble and overcomes despondency.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous For Rushville People To Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they so often get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health will be gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbar, urinary troubles, dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease may follow as the kidneys get worse. Don't neglect your kidneys. Help the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, which are so strongly recommended right here in Rushville.

Mrs. Ella Endicott, 125 S. Harrison St., Rushville, Ind., says: "One of the family suffered from severe pains through his back and had trouble in straightening after stooping. His kidneys were also irregular in action. Finally, he used Doan's Kidney Pills and they removed the troubles."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Endicott had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Amusements

The Gem will show a three reel Rex feature "A Jew's Christmas" for tonight. It is said to tell a beautiful story of human interest and portrays the love, fear and veneration the Jewish children have for their elders. Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley are featured. Tomorrow night Florence Lawrence will be seen in a two reel drama, "A Girl and Her Money."

The Princess will show the two-reel Biograph feature tonight "The House of Discord" with Blanche Sweet, Dorothy Gish and Lionel Barrymore in the leads. The beautiful ball room scenes at the beginning of the story make a strong appeal to the observer and a story worthy of the settings soon develops. The wife and husband separate because of her plans to elope with another. Years later the daughter suffers also from her father's coldness of heart. The reconciliation at the end makes a pleasing ending. Tomorrow Alice Joyce and Tom Moore will be seen in a two-reel Kalen classic "The Hunchback." Miss Joyce as the heiress is very charming and Tom Moore as the Hunchback is very good.

Comprehensive Viewpoint

Huntington has a live Commercial club that is awake to all of its possibilities and ready to take advantage of any opportunities that will better the city and county.

The news columns of the Huntington Herald each day reflect the activities of the Commercial club. The most recent action of the club shows how it has its hand on the pulse of the people all the time and is always prepared to act.

A new set of committees have just been appointed. In the list of committees we find one on public market, another on new hospital, still another on public parks, county hospital, public music, river front improvement, public comfort stations, barge canal, subways and water supply.

Two new hospitals are to be built. The Commercial Club will have a committee that will find the sentiment of the community and express it. So it is with other public undertakings. The Huntington club is a fine example of the worth of such an organization.

TERMED WORST

from going out on their routes because of the fact that the postoffice department observed the day as Washington's birthday. It is doubtful if the carriers could have covered their routes had the holiday not been observed. In one or two instances school hacks with children bound for school were stuck in the drifts.

Three hacks were lost for a time in Anderson township this morning, and one was found stuck in a large drift. A team of horses was secured before the hack could be pulled out. The driver, with the children, had been there for almost an hour before assistance arrived. The people of Milroy have made arrangements to keep the children there over night and the hack will not make a return trip.

The city did not put out the snow plows until late this afternoon, because it was useless to try to clean the sidewalks with the wind blowing as it was.

The storm disrupted business generally. The grand jury was to have convened this morning, but it was impossible for all the jurors to get here. Very few people ventured out and trade was probably the lightest it had been for some time.

PEOPLE NOT

and life. It has been given as a guide to man in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation to serve as a lamp unto his feet and a light to his path. It has never been excelled or equalled by any production by man. But in so far as man has heeded its precepts or turned from them he has prospered or failed in the great purpose for which God created him.

"There are three kinds of sin that every man is more or less concerned about, national, municipal and personal sin.

"The people of Rushville eleven months ago committed themselves to the principle of a 'dry' town. The vote on the fourth day of April was in favor of a 'dry' town by 98 majority. It is not my purpose to argue the question as to whether prohibition prohibits or not, but to show just what the only record we have of the situation shows, Docket No. 7 of the Mayor's court.

"Our town has been 'dry' for a period of 11 months. I have copied the docket covering this period of eleven 'dry' months and compared it with the preceding months of the last 'wet' year. This by no means gives the actual number of drunks but it is a fair comparison because you get as many in proportion under both periods. Every man who gets drunk in Rushville is not arrested either under the 'wet' or 'dry' law."

The minister read the date of the arrests for drunkenness during each period. The total arrests for this cause during the 'wet' eleven months was 66, and the 'dry' eleven months 35, a difference of 31. The year preceding the last 'wet' year there were 123 arrests for this cause, he said.

He said he did not think Rushville voted 'dry' for political reasons, to go into the "blind tiger" business, not to spite the men in the business, but because the people wanted a cleaner, better and more prosperous city.

The Rev. Mr. Meacham declared no town was ever made 'dry' by taking a vote. He said it would not remain 'dry' if the matter is left to the mayor and police, no matter how good, because the evil-doer will resort to every means known to carry out his designs.

"Here is a small whiskey bottle," he continued, "that was handed to me the other day by a citizen of our town. He told me one thousand of these were shipped into Rushville last night a week ago. And from the way they appeared in the back alleys emptied of their contents it was not hard to believe that he was telling the truth. This is a bootleggers bottle. It holds one tenth of a pint, and sells, I am told for 15 cents a bottle, which would be $12.00 per gallon.

"Yet with all the violation of law there is no comparison between the improved conditions over the reign of the open saloon. Judge John D. Megee told me that in the one year that he has been on the bench there have come up fewer criminal cases for trial than in any one year during the past 20. If this is true with only eleven months of 'dry' then it would seem to me that we who voted 'dry' by a little effort in supporting our public officers we can make a still better showing than that.

"On next Tuesday at ten o'clock a. m., and at two p. m., two of our citizens will be on trial for having in their possession intoxicating liquors illegally. But they are not the only ones on trial. Every man and every citizen in Rushville who believes that law breakers ought to be restrained and receive their just reward for the violation of law, are on trial as well. The man who says he loves his home town, is on trial, the man who says he wants Rushville to be the cleanest town possible is on trial, the man who says he loves law and order is on trial, the man who says he loves the state of Indiana is also on trial, the man who says he loves his own home, and professes to have one spark of municipal patriotism in his breast is on trial. The law has been violated and if we who love our town let this violation go unrebuked it will be only to our further disgrace."

The Rev. C. M. Yocum preached on "Law Enforcement" at the Christian church. He said in part:

"Practically one year ago the sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage was made illegal in Rushville by the voice of a clear majority of her voters. Since that time by the sufferance of the officers and the patience of the people a number of blind tigers have been reported as conducting a fair if not a good business. Now, because of the activity of our officers we are brought face to face with the proposition of dealing with this illegal sale and these nefarious sellers. One year ago one of these men now apprehended contended that we who sought to vote the town dry were about to turn Rushville over into the hands of infamous law-breakers as we drove law-abiding saloon keepers out of business. Now these self-styled law-abiding saloon keepers are charged as infamous law-breakers to use their own language.

"What our attitude as citizens should be at this time is a question worthy of discussion."

Here followed a discussion of the divisions of our government—the legislative, executive and judicial departments and a description of law making, interpreting and enforcing. The following conclusions were drawn:

"We have a law in force in Rushville making the sale of liquor illegal. Laws are like whips, effective only when used. The judicial and executive departments are created to execute justice and enforce laws. Officers taking an oath to enforce laws should take such oath seriously and without fear or favor and without being coerced by citizens should be active in gathering evidence of offences and in bringing offenders to justice. But since no judge, mayor or prosecutor can go far from the path of public opinion either for good or bad it is essential that citizens give active support to worthy officers and uphold them in their work. In the present instance let us by our attitude make it easy for our officers to do their full duty and exceedingly hard for them to do otherwise."

The Rev. S. G. Huntington said at the First Baptist church that if the people of Rushville were under deep conviction and desperately in earnest they would soon rid themselves of illegal booze dispensaries of all kinds. He declared the fight should not be reduced to the low level of cheap politics because it is a question of law and order which should be settled on the higher plane of morality and good government.

He said this was an opportunity to strike a death blow to the illegal traffic and asked if the opportunity should not be improved. The protection of school children, he asserted, demands the elimination of the business.

He declared that Rushville at the last election demanded law enforcement and that it should have it. He said the voters put the present officials in office because they believed them men of firmness and that now their hands should be held up to the citizens after they had led the way.

Then, On the Other Hand-- If the Legislature Does Not Pass that Law---

Compelling you to buy your buggies where you can get most value for your money, you are not going to be contrary. You want all you can get for your money and it is your fault if you don't get it. You don't want to pay more for an article than your neighbor did. You don't have to, because you get the same treatment from us and the same price on a buggy your neighbor did. We play no favorites, run no cut sales, but you can buy buggies from us CHEAPER THAN YOU CAN BUY THEM AT ANY CUT SALE EVER ADVERTISED and you can do it every day in the year. You don't have to wait for a sale as our prices are always below the other fellow, no matter what discount he advertises. Remember this and come and see for your self. The more buggies we sell the more we can buy and the more we can buy the cheaper we can buy them. That is the whole thing in a nut shell. Quantity counts when you go into the market to buy buggies or anything else for that matter. The large number of buggies we sell makes us large buyers and that is why we can make you a price on buggies that our competitors can not and will not meet; and the satisfaction our vehicles give is the reason we sell the most of them. Let's get together on this next buggy you have to buy. We can save you some money and at the same time make a little ourselves. We are willing. How do you feel about the matter?

of New Salem, but nothing has ever resulted from it. At Evansville a gypsy promised to produce Catherine Friday, but never showed up.

The present clew confirms one unearthed just after the girl's disappearance, but which was not believed to be of any worth until the present.

Unusual interest attaches here to the nation-wide search for Catherine Winters. Dr. Winters is a Knight of Pythias and for that reason the lodges of this order have taken a wide interest in the search.

The Knights of Pythias of the country have posted approximately four thousand dollars in rewards for the finding of the Winters child. The Knights of Pythias lodge here last night called Newcastle by telephone to learn whether Dr. Winters had reached Fort Smith, Ark., and found that a telegram had been received from Dr. Winters saying that he had been detained in St. Louis by a snow storm.

Dr. Winters has spent every cent he had in the search for the girl and has traveled over eight thousand miles. A Rushville man suggested today that Rushville, Connerville, Richmond and other neighboring cities should make up a purse, with each person donating a small amount, to help Dr. Winters in his difficulty.

Catherine Winters disappeared from her home in Newcastle at noon March 20. She was last seen in front of a drug store near a band of gypsy wagons. Her absence was not reported to the police until that night.

Because of the fact that the gypsy wagons were in the city at the time suspicion was at once directed toward them. Searching parties were formed and Wayne and Henry counties carefully searched. Reports from nearly every town in the two counties to the effect that the band of gypsies had passed through that town were all investigated, but nothing was turned up to clear the mystery.

Two days after the disappearance, the city was searched in an effort to prove the foul play theory. No clews were found in any nook or corner.

lines of roads, one extending from Indianapolis, through Shelbyville to Greensburg, and the other from Indianapolis to Connersville, passing through Rushville. The cars are operated over both divisions, that is to say, the cars leaving Greensburg are run through to Indianapolis over what is known as the Greensburg division, and thence from Indianapolis to Connersville, over the Connersville division, and then returning over the same lines to Greensburg. By thus routing the cars nine cars are able to fill the train schedule for the day, which necessarily requires nine train crews. The trainmen are asking that each division be operated separately. This would require ten cars instead of nine, and would have an effect of increasing the pay roll of the trainmen more than 10 per cent, and the advantage that would accrue to the trainmen would be in getting more layover time at the end of each run. The layover time on the present schedule is from ten minutes to an hour and twenty minutes, but in most cases from about twenty to thirty minutes; and the running time over each division from about one hour and thirty or forty minutes to two hours and ten minutes. The desirability of such a change in the working hours of the trainmen will, no doubt, be conceded by every one, but in this case the award on that point, as well as on the matter of the increase in wages, must finally be determined largely, if not wholly, by the state of the financial budget of the traction company.

"The scale of wages paid to the trainmen in the employment of the respondent begins with a wage of 21 cents per hour and increases 1 cent per hour each year until a maximum of 30 cents per hour is reached. This is substantially the scale now paid by all interurban roads in this part of the country, and the maximum is 3 cents per hour more than the maximum in the award recently made in the arbitration between the employees and the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal Company.

"The average earnings of trainmen on respondent's road is considerably more than that of other employees of said company in other departments of service. This may be accounted for in part by the fact that trainmen are on duty more hours per month than are other employees. The working hours of trainmen, however, are as good as will be found on any interurban road. On the present time cards all runs but two are straight runs.

"The runs are so arranged that the men may reside in the cities on the line of respondent's road other than the city of Indianapolis, and have thereby some advantages in living expenses that are valuable.

"Wages of trainmen have been increased 24.99 per cent in seven years, which is more than the increase in the cost of living during that time.

"The properties now owned by the respondent, the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction Company, passed through a receivership from 1906 to November, 1910, at which time said properties were sold at a receiver's sale and purchased by respondent. No dividends on stock nor interest on bonds were paid during the period of said receivership and since the reorganization after the purchase at the receiver's sale, dividends amounting to twenty-seven thousand five hundred (27,500) dollars have been paid on the preferred stock and that is all the investors have received in eight years on an investment of one million, eight hundred thousand (1,800,000) dollars.

"The gross operating revenues last year were barely sufficient to pay the operating expenses and interest on bonds, and there is no indication of an increase in revenues in the near future. It will be necessary for the company to borrow money to make repairs made necessary by flood damages of last year and to install such block signal equipment as may be required. The operating revenues of this company are 29 per cent less per mile than that of any other interurban line running into Indianapolis, and 49 per cent less than that of the road having the highest rate of income per mile.

"In the adjustment, between the company and the employees, of the practically all the demands of the nineteen grievances which were adjusted, the company conceded practically all the demands of the employees and these concessions entail an additional and substantial burden on the company.

"From the uncontroverted evidence the employees of the respondent receive all of the operating revenue not expended for repairs or in payment of interest charges. The stockholders are receiving no dividends on their stock, and until recently no interest was paid on bonded indebtedness. Certainly when labor receives all the income as it is, and has been, doing in this case, there can be no just claim that any part of the invested capital should be applied on or added to a wage scale of the trainmen employed by the respondent company."

THEY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

The belated news of a thrilling accident two miles west of Lewisville Friday night is just coming to light. Flossie and Russell Poer, 14 and 12 years old, and Faye Moody, age 15, while on the way from the Lewisville school dedication in a pony cart, were struck by a T. H. I. & E. traction car, but were not very seriously injured. The Poer children were thrown about thirty feet and the Moody child was caught on the step of the car and dragged about thirty feet. She suffered a broken collar bone and arm. The pony was killed instantly.

Paul Allen, of the E. R. Casady dry goods store left Saturday for Moline, Ill., where he will be married tomorrow to Miss Clara Burtt, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Burtt. After a week's trip they will be at home in the Fanny Study property in North Harrison street. Mr. Allen is a brother of L. L. Allen and recently came to this city from Gary, Ind.

AMERICANS IN LONDON CELEBRATE

Prominent Men of This Continent
Will Observe Washington's Birthday at Dinner.

GRIFFITHS ON THE PROGRAM

(By United Press.)
London, Feb. 23—Washington's birthday will be celebrated tonight by leading members of the American colony in London, and a number of distinguished officers and ex-officers of the United States army and navy, at the annual dinner of the Navy League of America at the Hyde Park Hotel. George A. Mower, president of the London section of the league, will be chairman for the occasion, and the guests will include Ambassador Walter H. Page; Major George O. Squire, military attache; Commander Powers Savington, naval attache; Edward Bell, second secretary of the embassy; Consul-General J. L. Griffiths, Frederick Van Duzer, Robert N. Fairbanks and Fred M. Fisk.

SCHOOLS GIVE PROGRAM

Washington's Birthday is Observed
by Grades.

The grade schools observed Washington's birthday this morning with short but appropriate programs. Nothing elaborate was planned and each room gave a short program at the opening of school. The attendance was cut down one-third to one-half on account of the weather and it was planned to dismiss school early this afternoon. The high school will give a program Tuesday morning at the assembly hour. Music readings and recitations will be given. The Washington's birthday program was put off until Tuesday as that is the day that the music teacher is at the Graham building.

TO REVIVE BIG MEETINGS

Committee Will Bring "Catch-My-Pal" Patterson Here March 29.

At a meeting of the committee, which had charge of the Men's Big Meetings, yesterday afternoon it was decided to have one more of the meetings. "Catch-my-Pal" Patterson will be the attraction of this meeting which will be held on March 29. He will address a meeting of men in the St. Paul M. E. church in the afternoon of this date and will address a mass meeting to be held at night in the Main Street Christian church at night. Mr. Patterson is a native of Ireland and is said to be a fine lecturer. Several Rushville and Rush county people heard him at Winona last summer and were well pleased with his address. It has been several years since Rushville had a Men's Big Meeting and an effort will be made to revive them. Patterson has never spoken in this city and should attract a large crowd.

TERMED WORST
WINTER'S STORMSnow and Driving Wind Which Piles
it in Drifts 15 Feet Deep Disrupts
Business Generally

TRAINS MANY HOURS LATE

Many Schools Dismissed Because of
Small Attendance—Anderson Tp.
School Hacks Lost.

The worst storm of the winter hit Rushville and Rush county yesterday afternoon and continued today. The blizzard was accompanied by a drop in temperature of something like 30 degrees. The mercury was up to 40 degrees Sunday morning and during the afternoon a steady drop was noticed. This morning it was ten above and at noon five.

The cold was nothing to compare with the wind and snow. The storm came from the east. The snow, accompanied by a strong wind, made walking and traffic almost impossible. The streets, sidewalks and country roads were banked high in snow, many of the drifts being ten and twelve feet in height.

The storm was general over this section of the country. Trains on all roads entering the city were late. The C. H. & D. did not have an east-bound train all morning and the Big Four was almost as bad off. The southbound Big Four passenger train, due here at 8:03 o'clock this morning was caught in a drift back of a freight train between Knightstown and Shirley and did not arrive until almost eleven o'clock.

The interurban line was running on schedule up until the middle of the morning and then its troubles began. The eastbound cars due here at 11:42 and 12:20 were annulled and later cars ran irregularly. Both trains on the L. E. & W. were annulled today.

The blizzard played havoc with the schools of the county and city. Many were dismissed because of the small attendance. Several schools did not have a pupil to report. The country roads were almost impassible because of the drifts and very few people ventured out.

The rural mail carriers were saved

WHOLE STATE IN GRIP OF STORMIndianapolis is Practically Isolated
Because of Inability of Cars to Enter the City.

SUFFERING FROM THE COLD

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Feb. 23.—Indiana and Indianapolis were today in the grip of the worst storm of the winter, according to reports from interurban and city traction sources, because of the high wind and heavy drifting snow, which has continued since yesterday morning. The city was isolated because of the inability of interurban cars to enter the city.

The high wind and snow caused much suffering though the mercury was at 11 above. A girl giving the name of Miss Springer of Connersville, here attending a millinery opening, fainted several times in a West Washington street store today after being nearly overcome by the cold. The hands of Mable Murray, 9 years old, were frozen.

MRS. DAVID M'KEE IS DEAD

Passed Away Last Night at Home
in Connersville.

Word was received here this morning of the death of Mrs. Ella McKee, wife of David W. McKee, a well known Connersville attorney. Mrs. McKee died last night about nine o'clock at her home in Connersville. Little of the details are known but it is thought that her death was very sudden. Mr. McKee is a brother of Mrs. Samuel H. Trabue and Mrs. Samuel Logan of this city. Besides her husband, Mrs. McKee is survived by four children, Mrs. Elmer Green of Newcastle, Mrs. Ethel Thomas and the Misses Grace and Louise McKee. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

SECOND ATTEMPT
TO MEET TONIGHTChamber of Commerce Due to Hear
Report of By-Laws Committee
at Eight O'clock.

IN COURT HOUSE ASSEMBLY

The second attempt to get a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce members for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee on by-laws will be made tonight, although indications today were that weather conditions would be decidedly against the effort. It is desired that the committee report as soon as possible so as to complete the organization work.

Members all received cards this morning through the mail announcing the meeting for the court house assembly room tonight at eight o'clock. The meeting was originally set for Tuesday night, but because of the men's banquet that night it was thought best to postpone it.

A big attendance of members is urged because it is the purpose of the organization that there should be a free discussion of the rules which will govern the body.

LARGE CROWDS AT MEETINGS

Other Democratic meetings in the county Saturday to select precinct committeemen and delegates to the State convention report good crowds. At the Anderson township convention held in Milroy, the largest crowd since 1880 was reported to have been present. Brint Boling was selected committeeman from the south precinct and Riley Rogers from the north. The delegate to the State convention is W. S. Mercer and the alternate is R. J. Whaley.

In Center township Bert Benner was selected as delegate to the State convention and George B. Clark, alternate. The committeemen are Omer Abernathy and Walter Rhodes. In Posey township the committeemen are Eli Collins and Clark Offutt. The delegate to the convention is Elihu Price and the alternate is Eli Collins.

PEOPLE NOT
RESPONSIBLERev. A. D. Batchelor Says There is Wrong Impression About Law Enforcement.

IT'S DUTY OF PROSECUTOR

Ministers of City Discuss Liquor
Law Violations in Pulpits
Sunday Night.

Ministers of the city Sunday night discussed law enforcement in Rushville from the various pulpits. The question was brought to a head by the recent raids of the police which resulted in two charges being placed.

At the St. Paul Methodist church the Rev. Batchelor spoke from Prov. XXIX: 18, "Where there is no vision the people cast off restraint."

He said, "We need a vision of the right. Without this the teaching of morality is disputed, its authority denied and human rights disregarded. We also need the vision incorporated in law. Some men live above the law. They need no restraint. They would keep the law if there was no outward statute. But others live beneath the law. They must be restrained by the fear which the law inspires. Without law these would cast off every restraint."

"We need a vision on the enforcement of the law. An officer should be a terror to evil-doers. Good government depends more on the men behind the law than the law itself. An official takes an oath to enforce the law. He cannot be excused on the ground of public sentiment. Public sentiment is a difficult thing to ascertain. Sometimes it is no more than the clamor of the lawless who desire to cast off restraint. Besides, no official takes an oath to support public sentiment, but to enforce the law."

"We need a vision on the prosecution of the lawless. As a rule the liquor men are the most lawless. All over the land they have considered themselves an exception to the law. No business gives our courts so much trouble as the liquor business. It is a business without a vision and a conscience, hence it casts off restraint. Liquor men who violate the law should be prosecuted as vigorously as other criminals."

"When a prosecutor does not do this, he is either in sympathy with the business, or has been bribed by it, or is afraid of it. In either case he is unworthy of his office. It is unfair for prosecutors to put the burden of prosecution on the people. It is not the people's business to hunt up the evidence and to file the charges. The prosecutor is elected to do this. If it is a case of murder a prosecutor will be diligent in searching out evidence. If it is a case of lawless liquor men, good citizens are told to hunt up evidence and file charges."

"In such case the office is prostituted to the protection of the lawless instead of the protection of the people. A town can easily rid itself of the 'blind tiger' nuisance with a vigorous enforcement of the law, and with a persistent prosecution. But where there is no such vision the lawless will cast off restraint."

"Municipal Patriotism on Trial" was the subject selected by the Rev. J. B. Meacham at the First Presbyterian church. He spoke in part as follows:

"The Bible is the greatest law book that has ever been printed. It is all in the interest of man's best welfare. There are statutes in it covering every part of man's nature

SAYS GIRL IS

Not Catherine Winters

(By United Press.)

Springdale, Ark., Feb. 23.—Dr. W. A. Winters of Newcastle, Ind., arrived here today and said that the girl known as Lucy Stuart, taken into custody as his missing daughter, was not his child.

Dr. Winters, on his arrival here, was taken at once to the child by a representative of the Newspaper Enterprise association. He said that the girl bore a trifling resemblance to his daughter.

He expressed great disappointment at the failure of his mission.

Disappointed, but still hopeful that his girl would be found, Dr. Winters left here today for the north.

"If Catherine is still alive," he said, "this is only one more disappointment. I want to thank the American nation for the interest it is taking."

For all his hopeful statement, Dr. Winters was downcast by this latest disappointment. There was nothing of a resemblance between the two girls.

Owing to the excitement which has prevailed since the story of the finding of Catherine here had been started, Dr. Winters took the girl into the drawing room of the car and talked with her. She is in a deplorable condition. Following her interview with Winters, she was taken back to Huntsville. She will be taken from Stuart and given to a more responsible person.

The clew to the whereabouts of little Catherine Winters, missing almost a year from her home in Newcastle, which today failed, was the most plausible yet received and accounted for the hasty trip of Dr. W. A. Winters to Arkansas to make sure whether the girl known as Lucy Stuart was his child.

George Stuart, age fifty, was arrested Saturday near Huntsville, Ark., with the little girl in his possession. He finally admitted, dispatches say, the girl was Catherine Winters, and that she had been kidnapped by another man, whose name he would not divulge, and brought to him outside of Newcastle.

There have been several clews recently, but this one looked more like there might be more element of truth in it than any others. The only point where the story seemed weak was in that Stuart asserted he married Dr. Winters' divorced wife, the mother of Catherine. This could not be, as Dr. and Mrs. Winters still live together.

The most recent clew that looked reasonable, came last week when a girl resembling Catherine, going under the name of Rose Davis, was found at Middleport, Ohio, but Dr. Winters was doomed to disappointment again when he arrived.

An unusual "tip" from Sacramento, Cal., came here last week to search for Catherine in a shanty on the "old wagon road" five miles out

He is held pending a decision on appeal to the supreme court following a verdict by court marshal of guilty of being a spy and a sentence of death.

ENGLAND WILL KEEP OUT

Statement Today Says Intervention
in Mexico is Impossible.

(By United Press.)

London, Eng., Feb. 23.—The British government has no intention of intervening in Mexico, according to a formal statement made in the House of Commons this afternoon by a representative of the foreign office. Under Secretary Akland said: "Though conditions in Mexico today are causing the greatest prejudice to British interests, we do not propose any attempt at British intervention, which would be futile and impolitic."

SITUATION TERMED GRAVE

Senator Shively and Wilson Discuss
Mexican Question Today.

(By United Press.)

Washington, Feb. 23.—Senator Shively, acting chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, conferred at length with President Wilson today. He stated the Mexican situation was too grave for public discussion and that a satisfactory solution would be worked out.

It is understood he told the President certain senators are greatly wrought up over the killing of W. S. Benton, a British subject. Some, he said, had characterized it as wanton murder. It is understood he asked Wilson to announce a complete and independent investigation would be made and the result made public.

DIVORCE CASE IS HEARD

Judge Megee Listens to Evidence in Douthit Suit.

Judge Megee heard the divorce suit of Mrs. Ora E. Douthit against Walter A. Douthit this afternoon. Several witnesses testified for the plaintiff. She alleged cruel and inhuman treatment and the complaint stated that he deserted her without cause. The defendant was not in court but was represented by George W. Curtus of Indianapolis. John E. Osborn and John A. Tittsworth represented the plaintiff. Mrs. Douthit is the daughter of George Foster, a well known Rush county farmer, living in the southern part of the county.

FATHER OF LOCAL MAN DEAD.

Word has been received here of the death of Joel O. Jamieson, father of the Rev. A. W. Jamieson, at his home in Monmouth, Illinois. Mr. Jamieson was eighty-three years old and death came after a brief illness from a gripe and heart disease. The funeral services were held Saturday.

Mr. Jamieson was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, April 30, 1831. He had been a resident of Monmouth for the past twenty-six years. He is survived by his widow, six sons, five of whom are preachers and one daughter.

Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction company trainmen today were not making any comments publicly on the decision returned Saturday night by the public service commission in which an increase in wages and a petition to operate the Shelbyville and local divisions separately were denied.

These were the two of the twenty-one grievances the trainmen presented to the company which could not be settled and were left to the state commission as an arbitration board. The agreement is binding for three years. I. & C. officials thought the decision very fair and the board expresses the hope that the men will see the justness of it.

"We desire to say in the beginning," reads the decision, "that the spirit of co-operation and friendly feeling between the trainmen and the president of the traction company, as disclosed upon the hearing and at all stages of their proceedings before this board of arbitration, is worthy of commendation; the trainmen have manifested a high sense of their duty and relationship to their employer, and their employer has shown an appreciation of this devotion on the part of the employee that is well worthy of consideration by employee and employer everywhere."

Truth Telling

Advertisements

Quite a natural text for a little talk on the anniversary of Washington's birthday.

There is some sentiment and also good, plain, business sense in the idea that an advertisement must be an exact statement of fact—that it must be without exaggeration.

The old policy of "let the buyer beware" has become obsolete. In the same way the tendency to have alluring advertising without the goods to back it up has gone into the discard.

It did not pay.

There is more care exercised today in the preparation of an advertisement than ever before.

People are greater readers of advertising than ever before, and are more severe critics.

They know the ring of the true from the noise of the counterfeit.

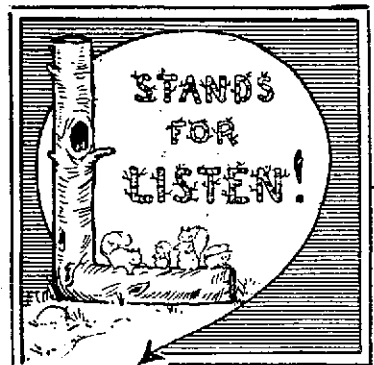

The advertising in the good newspapers like The Daily Republican is subjected to careful scrutiny. Publishers are jealous of the character of their columns. Standards are getting higher—the business world is getting more exacting in its ideals and its practices.

The Mayor Casts a Shadow Before.

QUICKLY the girl in the corduroy suit leaned toward Mr. Magee. She whispered, and her tone was troubled:

"Stand by me. I'm afraid I'll need your help."

"What's the matter?" inquired Magee.

"I haven't much of any right here, I guess. But I had to come."

"But your key?"

"I fear my—my press agent—stole it."

"Never mind," he said very gently; "I'll see you through."

Quimby was standing over Mr. Magee. "How about you?" he asked.

"Call up Andy Rutter and ask about me," replied Magee in the tone of one who prefers war to peace.

"I work for Mr. Bentley," said Quimby. "Rutter hasn't any authority here. He isn't to be manager next season, I understand. However, the professor wants me to let you stay. He says he'll be responsible."

Mr. Magee looked in open mouthed astonishment at the unexpected sponsor he had found. "And you?" went on Quimby to the woman.

"Why?" began Miss Norton.

"Absolutely all right," said Mr. Magee. "They come from Hal Bentley, like myself. He's put them in my care. I'll answer for them." He saw the girl's eyes. They spoke her thanks.

Mr. Quimby shook his head as one in a dream.

"All this is beyond me—way beyond," he ruminated. "I'm going to write all about it to Mr. Bentley, and I suppose I got to let you stay till I hear from him. I think he ought to come up here if he can."

"The more the merrier," said Mr. Magee, reflecting cheerfully that the Bentleys were in Florida at last accounts.

"Come, mamma," said Miss Norton, rising, "let's go up and pick out a suit. There's one I used to have a few years ago. You can see the hermit's shack from the windows. By the way, Mr. Magee, will you send Mr. Peters up to us? He may be able to help us get settled."

"Ahem!" muttered Mr. Magee. "I'll have a talk with Peters. To be quite frank, I anticipate trouble. You see, the hermit of Baldpate doesn't approve of women."

"The idiot!" cried Mrs. Norton.

"Delicious!" laughed the girl.

"I shall ask Peters to serve you," said Magee. "I shall appeal to his gallant side. But I must proceed gently. This is his first day as our cook, and you know how necessary a good first impression is with a new cook. I'll appeal to his better nature."

"Don't do it!" cried the girl. "Don't emphasize us to him in any way or he may exercise his right as cook and leave. Just ignore us. We'll play at being our own bellboys."

"Ignore you?" cried Mr. Magee. "What herculean tasks you set! I'm not equal to that one!" He picked up his traveling bag and led the way upstairs. "I'm something of a bellboy myself when roused," he said.

The girl selected suit 17, at the far end of the corridor from Magee's apartments. "It's the very one I used to have years and years ago—at least two or three years ago," she said.

"Isn't it stupid? All the furniture in a heap!"

"And cold," said Mrs. Norton. "My land, I wish I was back by my own fire."

"I'll make you regret your words, Mrs. Norton!" cried Magee. He threw up the windows, pulled off his coat and set to work on the furniture. The girl bustled about, lightening his work by her smile.

"I hope you don't expect a tip," the girl said, laughing.

"I do," he said, coming closer and speaking in a voice that was not for the ear of the chaperon. "I want a tip on this—do you really act?"

She looked at him steadily.

"Once," she said, "when I was sixteen, I appeared in an amateur play at school. It was my first and last appearance on the stage."

"Thanks, lady," remarked Mr. Magee in imitation of the bellboy he was supposed to be. He sought No. 7. There he made himself again presentable, after which he descended to the office.

Mr. Bland sat reading the New York paper before the fire. From the little card room and the parlor, the two rooms to the right and left of the hotel's front door, Quimby had brought forth extra chairs. He stood now by the large chair that held Professor Bolton, engaged in conversation with that gentleman.

"Yes," he was saying, "I lived three years in Reuton and five years in New York. It took me eight years—eight years to realize the truth."

"I heard about it from John Bentley," the professor said gently.

"He's been pretty kind to me, Mr. Bentley has," replied Quimby. "When the money was all gone he offered me this job. Once the Quimbys owned most of the land around Baldpate mountain. It all went in those eight years. To think that it took all those years for me to find it out!"

"If I'm not impertinent, Quimby," put in Magee, "to find what out?"

"That what I wanted, the railroad men didn't want," replied Quimby bitterly, "and that was—the safety of the public. You see, I invented a new rail joint, one that was a great improvement on the old kind. I had sort of an idea, when I was doing it—an idea of service to the world—you know. God, what a joke! I sold all the Quimby lands, and went to Reuton, and then to New York to place it. Not one of the railroad men but admitted that it was an improvement, and a big one—and not one but fought like mad to keep me from getting it down where the public would see it. They didn't want the expense of a change."

Mr. Quimby looked out at the sunlit stretch of snow.

"Eight years," he repeated. "I fought and pleaded. No, I begged—that was the word—I begged. You'd be surprised to know the names of some of the men who kept me waiting in their private offices and sneered at me over their polished desks. They turned me down—every one. Some of them played me—as though I'd been a fish. They referred me to other ends of the same big game, laughing in their sleeves. I guess, at the knowledge of how hopeless it was. Oh, they made a fine fool of me."

"You might have put down some of your joints at your own expense," suggested the professor.

"Didn't I try?" cried Quimby. "Do you think they'd let me? No, the public might see them and demand them everywhere. Once I thought I had convinced somebody. It was down in Reuton—the Suburban railway. There was a rustle as Mr. Bland let his paper fall to the floor. 'Old Henry Thornhill was president of the road—he is yet, I guess—but young Hayden and a fellow named David Kendrick were running it. Kendrick was on my side—he almost had Hayden. They were going to let me lay a stretch of track with my joints. Then something happened. Maybe you remember. Kendrick disappeared in the night—he's never been seen since.'"

"I do remember," said the professor softly.

"Hayden turned me down," went on Quimby. "The money was all gone. So I came back to Upper Asquevan—caretaker of an inn that overlooks the property my father owned—the property I squandered for a chance to save human lives."

He moved away, and the men sat in silence for a time. Then the professor spoke very gently:

"Poor devil—to have had his dream of service—and then grow old on Baldpate."

"Well, everything's shipshape in the kitchen," announced the hermit cheerfully, hurrying into the room. "I couldn't go without seeing to that. I wish you the best of luck, gentlemen, and goodbye."

"Goodby!" cried the professor.

"By the gods, he's leaving us!" almost wept Mr. Bland.

"It can't be," said Mr. Magee.

"It has to be," said the hermit of Baldpate, solemnly shaking his head. "I'd like to stay with you, and I would if they hadn't come. But here they are, and when women come in the door I fly out of the window, as the saying is."

"But, Peters," pleaded Magee, "you are not going to leave us in the hole like this?"

"Sorry," replied Peters. "I can please men, but I can't please women. I tried to please one once—but let the dead past bury its dead. I live on Baldpate in a shack to escape the sex, and it wouldn't be consistent for me to stay here now. I got to go. I hate to, like a dog, but I got to."

"Peters," said Mr. Magee. "I'm surprised. After giving your word to stay! And who knows—you may be able to gather valuable data for your book. Stick around. These women won't bother you. And we'll pay you beyond the dreams of avarice of a Broadway chef. Won't we, gentlemen?"

The others nodded. Mr. Peters visibly weakened.

"Well," he began. "I—His eyes were on the stairs. Mr. Magee also looked in that direction and saw the girl of the station smiling down. She no longer wore coat and hat, and the absence of the latter revealed a glory of golden hair that became instantly a rival to the sunshine in that drear bare room.

"No, Peters," she said. "you mustn't go. We couldn't permit it. Mamma and I will go."

She continued to smile at the obviously dazzled Peters. Suddenly he spoke in a determined tone:

"No, don't do that. I'll stay." Then he turned to Magee and continued for that gentleman's ear alone: "Doggone it, we're all alike! We resolve and resolve and then one of them looks at us and it's all forgot. I had a friend who advertised for a wife—leastways, he was a friend until he advertised. He got ninety-two replies, seventy of 'em from married men advising against the step. 'I'm cured,' he says to me. 'Not for me.' Did he keep his word? No. A week after he married a widow just to see if what the seventy said was true. I'm mortal. I hang around the buzzsaw. If you give me a little money, I'll go down to the village and buy the provisions for lunch."

Gleefully Mr. Magee started the hermit on his way, and then went over to where the girl stood at the foot of the stairs.

"They went together to the kitchen, found a pail and filled it with icy water from the pump at the rear of the inn. Inside once more, Mr. Magee remarked thoughtfully:

"Who would have guessed a week ago that today I would be climbing the broad staircase of a summer hotel carrying a pail of water for a lady fair?"

They paused on the landing.

"There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio," smiled the girl, "than are dreamed of, even by novel-

ists." Mr. Magee started. Had she recognized him as the Magee of light fiction? Her face went suddenly grave. She came closer. "I can't help wondering," she said, "which side you are on?"

"Which side of what?" asked Magee.

"Why, of this," she answered, waving her hand toward the office below.

"I don't understand," objected Mr. Magee.

"Let's not be silly," she replied. "You know what brought me here. I know what brought you. There are three sides, and only one is honest. I hope, so very much, that you are on that side."

"Upon my word," began Magee.

"Will it interest you to know," she continued, "I saw the big mayor of Reuton in the village this morning? With him was his shadow, Lou Max. Let's see—you had the first key. Mr. Bland the second, the professor the third and I had the fourth. The mayor has the fifth key, of course. He'll be here soon."

"The mayor," gasped Mr. Magee. "Really, I haven't the slightest idea what you mean. I'm here to work."

"Very well," said the girl coldly, "if you wish it that way." They came to the door of 17, and she took the pail from Mr. Magee's hand. "Thanks."

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" asked Magee, indicating the pail.

"I'll see you at luncheon, sir," she said, responded Miss Norton, and the door of 17 slammed shut.

Mr. Magee returned to No. 7 and thoughtfully stirred the fire. The tangle of events bade fair to swamp him.

"The mayor of Reuton," he mused, "has the fifth key. What in the name of common sense is going on? It's too much even for melodramatic me." He leaned back in his chair. "Anyhow, I like her eyes," he said. "And I shouldn't want to be quoted as disapproving of her hair either. I'm on her side, whichever it may be."

Are Contracted by Changeable Weather. A Simple Remedy.

Sudden changes are particularly trying for old people or those who suffer from a weakened, run-down condition, chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis, but if such persons would only apply common sense methods in the treatment of their condition, much discomfort and suffering might be avoided.

The most essential thing to do is to build up strength, enrich the blood, increase vital resistance and to accomplish this nothing equals Vinol, our cod liver and iron tonic.

Mrs. M. J. Grimes of Springfield, Ohio, says: "I was badly run-down, nervous and weak, and while in this condition I contracted a heavy cold and rheumatism. Vinol was recommended and I am happy to say it cured my cold and restored me to health again."

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds should try a bottle of Vinol. We will return your money if it does not help you. F. B. Johnson and Company, druggists, Rushville, Indiana.

Are Women Naturally Despondent?

A prominent writer so claims. Women are constituted with a delicate organism and in nine cases out of ten mental depression may be attributed to an abnormal condition of the system which expresses itself in nervousness, sleeplessness, backache, headaches, causing constant misery and as a result despondency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, is the one great remedy for this condition. It goes to the root of the trouble and overcomes despondency. ## Amusements

The Gem will show a three reel Rex feature "A Jew's Christmas" for tonight. It is said to tell a beautiful story of human interest and portrays the love, fear and veneration the Jewish children have for their elders. Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley are featured. Tomorrow night Florence Lawrence will be seen in a two reel drama, "A Girl and Her Money."

The Princess will show the two-reel Biograph feature tonight "The House of Discord" with Blanche Sweet, Dorothy Gish and Lionel Barrymore in the leads. The beautiful ball room scenes at the beginning of the story make a strong appeal to the observer and a story worthy of the settings soon develops. The wife and husband separate because of her plans to elope with another. Years later the daughter suffers also from her father's coldness of heart. The reconciliation at the end makes a pleasing ending. Tomorrow Alice Joyce and Tom Moore will be seen in a two-reel Kalem classic "The Hunchback." Miss Joyce as the heiress is very charming and Tom Moore as the Hunchback is very good.

Comprehensive Viewpoint

Huntington has a live Commercial club that is awake to all of its possibilities and ready to take advantage of any opportunities that will better the city and county.

The news columns of the Huntington Herald each day reflect the activities of the Commercial club. The most recent action of the club shows how it has its hand on the pulse of the people all the time and is always prepared to act.

A new set of committees have just been appointed. In the list of committees we find one on public market, another on new hospital, still another on public parks, county hospital, public music, river front improvement, public comfort stations, barge canal, subways and water supply.

Two new hospitals are to be built. The Commercial Club will have a committee that will find the sentiment of the community and express it. So it is with other public undertakings. The Huntington club is a fine example of the worth of such an organization.

TERMED WORST

From going out on their routes because of the fact that the postoffice department observed the day as Washington's birthday. It is doubtful if the carriers could have covered their routes had the holiday not been observed. In one or two instances school buses with children bound for school were stuck in the drifts.

Three hacks were lost for a time in Anderson township this morning, and one was found stuck in a large drift. A team of horses was secured before the hack could be pulled out. The driver, with the children, had been there for almost an hour before assistance arrived. The people of Milroy have made arrangements to keep the children there over night and the hack will not make a return trip.

The city did not put out the snow plows until late this afternoon, because it was useless to try to clean the sidewalks with the wind blowing as it was.

The storm disrupted business generally. The grand jury was to have convened this morning, but it was impossible for all the jurors to get here. Very few people ventured out and trade was probably the lightest it had been for some time.

and life. It has been given as a guide to man in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation to serve as a lamp unto his feet and a light to his path. It has never been excelled or equalled by any production by man. But in so far as man has heeded its precepts or turned from them he has prospered or failed in the great purpose for which God created him.

"There are three kinds of sin that every man is more or less concerned about, national, municipal and personal sin.

"The people of Rushville eleven months ago committed themselves to the principle of a 'dry' town. The vote on the fourth day of April was in favor of a 'dry' town by 98 majority. It is not my purpose to argue the question as to whether prohibition prohibits or not, but to show just what the only record we have of the situation shows, Docket No. 7 of the Mayor's court.

"Our town has been 'dry' for a period of 11 months. I have copied the docket covering this period of eleven 'dry' months and compared it with the preceding months of the last 'wet' year. This by no means gives the actual number of drunks but it is a fair comparison because you get as many in proportion under both periods. Every man who gets drunk in Rushville is not arrested either under the 'wet' or 'dry' law."

The minister read the date of the arrests for drunkenness during each period. The total arrests for this cause during the 'wet' eleven months was 66, and the 'dry' eleven months 35, a difference of 31. The year preceding the last 'wet' year there were 123 arrests for this cause, he said.

He said he did not think Rushville voted 'dry' for political reasons, to go into the "blind tiger" business, not to spite the men in the business, but because the people wanted a cleaner, better and more prosperous city.

The Rev. Mr. Meacham declared no town was ever made 'dry' by taking a vote. He said it would not remain 'dry' if the matter is left to the mayor and police, no matter how good, because the evil-doer will resort to every means known to carry out his designs.

"Here is a small whiskey bottle," he continued, "that was handed to me the other day by a citizen of our town. He told me one thousand of these were shipped into Rushville last night a week ago. And from the way they appeared in the back alleys emptied of their contents it was not hard to believe that he was telling the truth. This is a bootleggers bottle. It holds one tenth of a pint, and sells, I am told for 15 cents a bottle, which would be $12.00 per gallon.

"Yet with all the violation of law there is no comparison between the improved conditions over the reign of the open saloon. Judge John D. Megee told me that in the one year that he has been on the bench there have come up fewer criminal cases for trial than in any one year during the past 20. If this is true with only eleven months of 'dry' then it would seem to me that we who voted 'dry' by a little effort in supporting our public officers we can make a still better showing than that.

"On next Tuesday at ten o'clock a. m., and at two p. m., two of our citizens will be on trial for having in their possession intoxicating liquors illegally. But they are not the only ones on trial. Every man and every citizen in Rushville who believes that law breakers ought to be restrained and receive their just reward for the violation of law, are on trial as well. The man who says he loves his home town, is on trial, the man who says he wants Rushville to be the cleanest town possible is on trial, the man who says he loves law and order is on trial, the man who says he loves the state of Indiana is also on trial, the man who says he loves his own home, and professes to have one spark of municipal patriotism in his breast is on trial. The law has been violated and if we who love our town let this violation go

The Rev. C. M. Yocum preached on "Law Enforcement" at the Christian church. He said in part:

"Practically one year ago the sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage was made illegal in Rushville by the voice of a clear majority of her voters. Since that time by the sufferance of the officers and the patience of the people a number of blind tigers have been reported as conducting a fair if not a good business. Now, because of the activity of our officers we are brought face to face with the proposition of dealing with this illegal sale and these nefarious sellers. One year ago one of these men now apprehended contended that we who sought to vote the town dry were about to turn Rushville over into the hands of infamous law-breakers as we drove law-abiding saloon keepers out of business. Now these self-styled law-abiding saloon keepers are charged as infamous law-breakers to use their own language.

"What our attitude as citizens should be at this time is a question worthy of discussion."

Here followed a discussion of the divisions of our government—the legislative, executive and judicial departments and a description of law making, interpreting and enforcing. The following conclusions were drawn:

"We have a law in force in Rushville making the sale of liquor illegal. Laws are like whips, effective only when used. The judicial and executive departments are created to execute justice and enforce laws. Officers taking an oath to enforce laws should take such oath seriously and without fear or favor and without being coerced by citizens should be active in gathering evidence of offences and in bringing offenders to justice. But since no judge, mayor or prosecutor can go far from the path of public opinion either for good or bad it is essential that citizens give active support to worthy officers and uphold them in their work. In the present instance let us by our attitude make it easy for our officers to do their full duty and exceedingly hard for them to do otherwise."

The Rev. S. G. Huntington said at the First Baptist church that if the people of Rushville were under deep conviction and desperately in earnest they would soon rid themselves of illegal booze dispensaries of all kinds. He declared the fight should not be reduced to the low level of cheap politics because it is a question of law and order which should be settled on the higher plane of morality and good government.

He said this was an opportunity to strike a death blow to the illegal traffic and asked if the opportunity should not be improved. The protection of school children, he asserted, demands the elimination of the business.

He declared that Rushville at the last election demanded law enforcement and that it should have it. He said the voters put the present officials in office because they believed them men of firmness and that now their hands should be held up to the citizens after they had led the way.

Then, On the Other Hand-- If the Legislature Does Not Pass that Law---

Compelling you to buy your buggies where you can get most value for your money, you are not going to be contrary. You want all you can get for your money and it is your fault if you don't get it. You don't want to pay more for an article than your neighbor did. You don't have to, because you get the same treatment from us and the same price on a buggy your neighbor did. We play no favorites, run no cut sales, but you can buy buggies from us CHEAPER THAN YOU CAN BUY THEM AT ANY CUT SALE EVER ADVERTISED and you can do it every day in the year. You don't have to wait for a sale as our prices are always below the other fellow, no matter what discount he advertises. Remember this and come and see for your self. The more buggies we sell the more we can buy and the more we can buy the cheaper we can buy them. That is the whole thing in a nut shell. Quantity counts when you go into the market to buy buggies or anything else for that matter. The large number of buggies we sell makes us large buyers and that is why we can make you a price on buggies that our competitors can not and will not meet; and the satisfaction our vehicles give is the reason we sell the most of them. Let's get together on this next buggy you have to buy. We can save you some money and at the same time make a little ourselves. We are willing. How do you feel about the matter?

of New Salem, but nothing has ever resulted from it. At Evansville a gypsy promised to produce Catherine Friday, but never showed up.

The present clew confirms one unearthed just after the girl's disappearance, but which was not believed to be of any worth until the present.

Unusual interest attaches here to the nation-wide search for Catherine Winters. Dr. Winters is a Knight of Pythias and for that reason the lodges of this order have taken a wide interest in the search.

The Knights of Pythias of the country have posted approximately four thousand dollars in rewards for the finding of the Winters child. The Knights of Pythias lodge here last night called Newcastle by telephone to learn whether Dr. Winters had reached Fort Smith, Ark., and found that a telegram had been received from Dr. Winters saying that he had been detained in St. Louis by a snow storm.

Dr. Winters has spent every cent he had in the search for the girl and has traveled over eight thousand miles. A Rushville man suggested today that Rushville, Connerville, Richmond and other neighboring cities should make up a purse, with each person donating a small amount, to help Dr. Winters in his difficulty.

Catherine Winters disappeared from her home in Newcastle at noon March 20. She was last seen in front of a drug store near a band of gypsy wagons. Her absence was not reported to the police until that night.

Because of the fact that the gypsy wagons were in the city at the time suspicion was at once directed toward them. Searching parties were formed and Wayne and Henry counties carefully searched. Reports from nearly every town in the two counties to the effect that the band of gypsies had passed through that town were all investigated, but nothing was turned up to clear the mystery.

Two days after the disappearance the city was searched in an effort to prove the foul play theory. No clews were found in any nook or corner.

lines of roads, one extending from Indianapolis, through Shelbyville to Greensburg, and the other from Indianapolis to Connersville, passing through Rushville. The cars are operated over both divisions, that is to say, the cars leaving Greensburg are run through to Indianapolis over what is known as the Greensburg division, and thence from Indianapolis to Connersville, over the Connersville division, and then returning over the same lines to Greensburg. By thus routing the cars nine cars are able to fill the train schedule for the day, which necessarily requires nine train crews. The trainmen are asking that each division be operated separately. This would require ten cars instead of nine, and would have an effect of increasing the pay roll of the trainmen more than 10 per cent, and the advantage that would accrue to the trainmen would be in getting more layover time at the end of each run. The layover time on the present schedule is from ten minutes to an hour and twenty minutes, but in most cases from about twenty to thirty minutes; and the running time over each division from about one hour and thirty or forty minutes to two hours and ten minutes. The desirability of such a change in the working hours of the trainmen will, no doubt, be conceded by every one, but in this case the award on that point, as well as on the matter of the increase in wages, must finally be determined largely, if not wholly, by the state of the financial budget of the traction company.

"The scale of wages paid to the trainmen in the employment of the respondent begins with a wage of 21 cents per hour and increases 1 cent per hour each year until a maximum of 30 cents per hour is reached. This is substantially the scale now paid by all interurban roads in this part of the country, and the maximum is 3 cents per hour more than the maximum in the award recently made in the arbitration between the employees and the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal Company.

"The average earnings of trainmen on respondent's road is considerably more than that of other employees of said company in other departments of service. This may be accounted for in part by the fact that trainmen are on duty more hours per month than are other employees. The working hours of trainmen, however, are as good as will be found on any interurban road. On the present time cards all runs but two are straight runs.

"The runs are so arranged that the men may reside in the cities on the line of respondent's road other than the city of Indianapolis, and have thereby some advantages in living expenses that are valuable.

"Wages of trainmen have been increased 24.99 per cent in seven years, which is more than the increase in the cost of living during that time.

"The properties now owned by the respondent, the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Traction Company, passed through a receivership from 1906 to November, 1910, at which time said properties were sold at a receiver's sale and purchased by respondent. No dividends on stock nor interest on bonds were paid during the period of said receivership and since the reorganization after the purchase at the receiver's sale,

dividends amounting to twenty-seven thousand five hundred (27,500) dollars have been paid on the preferred stock and that is all the investors have received in eight years on an investment of one million, eight hundred thousand (1,800,000) dollars.

"The gross operating revenues last year were barely sufficient to pay the operating expenses and interest on bonds, and there is no indication of an increase in revenues in the near future. It will be necessary for the company to borrow money to make repairs made necessary by flood damages of last year and to install such block signal equipment as may be required. The operating revenues of this company are 29 per cent less per mile than that of any other interurban line running into Indianapolis, and 49 per cent less than that of the road having the highest rate of income per mile.

"In the adjustment, between the company and the employees, of the practically all the demands of the nineteen grievances which were adjusted, the company conceded practically all the demands of the employees and these concessions entail an additional and substantial burden on the company.

"From the uncontroverted evidence the employees of the respondent receive all of the operating revenue not expended for repairs or in payment of interest charges. The stockholders are receiving no dividends on their stock, and until recently no interest was paid on bonded indebtedness. Certainly when labor receives all the income as it is, and has been, doing in this case, there can be no just claim that any part of the invested capital should be applied on or added to a wage scale of the trainmen employed by the respondent company."

THEY HAD NARROW ESCAPE

The belated news of a thrilling accident two miles west of Lewisville Friday night is just coming to light. Flossie and Russell Poer, 14 and 12 years old, and Faye Moody, age 15, while on the way from the Lewisville school dedication in a pony cart, were struck by a T. H. I. & E. traction car, but were not very seriously injured. The Poer children were thrown about thirty feet and the Moody child was caught on the step of the car and dragged about thirty feet. She suffered a broken collar bone and arm. The pony was killed instantly.

Paul Allen, of the E. R. Casady dry goods store left Saturday for Moline, Ill., where he will be married tomorrow to Miss Clara Burt, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Burt. After a week's trip they will be at home in the Fanny Study property in North Harrison street. Mr. Allen is a brother of L. L. Allen and recently came to this city from Gary, Ind.

AMERICANS IN LONDON CELEBRATE

Prominent Men of This Continent
Will Observe Washington's
Birthday at Dinner.

GRIFFITHS ON THE PROGRAM

(By United Press.)
London, Feb. 23—Washington's birthday will be celebrated tonight by leading members of the American colony in London, and a number of distinguished officers and ex-officers of the United States army and navy, at the annual dinner of the Navy League of America at the Hyde Park Hotel. George A. Mower, president of the London section of the league, will be chairman for the occasion, and the guests will include Ambassador Walter H. Page; Major George O. Squire, military attaché; Commander Powers Savington, naval attaché; Edward Bell, second secretary of the embassy; Consul-General J. L. Griffiths, Frederick Van Duzer, Robert N. Fairbanks and Fred M. Fisk.

SCHOOLS GIVE PROGRAM

Washington's Birthday is Observed
by Grades.

The grade schools observed Washington's birthday this morning with short but appropriate programs. Nothing elaborate was planned and each room gave a short program at the opening of school. The attendance was cut down one-third to one-half on account of the weather and it was planned to dismiss school early this afternoon. The high school will give a program Tuesday morning at the assembly hour. Music readings and recitations will be given. The Washington's birthday program was put off until Tuesday as that is the day that the music teacher is at the Graham building.

D. A. R. CELEBRATE.

(By United Press.)
Washington, Feb. 23—Assistant Secretary of War Breckinridge and Representative M. Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, will be the principal speakers tonight at the Washington's birthday exercises of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Senate Honors Washington

(By United Press.)
Washington, Feb. 23—The United States Senate today paid tribute to the Father of His Country. Senator Swanson of Virginia, designated by Vice President Marshall, was the spokesman, and he read Washington's farewell address.

BRYAN TO SPEAK TONIGHT

(By United Press.)
Washington, Feb. 23—Secretary of State Bryan will be the chief speaker tonight before the Washington's Birthday dinner of the Retail Merchants Association.

TO REVIVE BIG MEETINGS

Committee Will Bring "Catch-My-Pal" Patterson Here March 29.

At a meeting of the committee, which had charge of the Men's Big Meetings, yesterday afternoon it was decided to have one more of the meetings. "Catch-my-Pal" Patterson will be the attraction of this meeting which will be held on March 29. He will address a meeting of men in the St. Paul M. E. church in the afternoon of this date and will address a mass meeting to be held at night in the Main Street Christian church at night. Mr. Patterson is a native of Ireland and is said to be a fine lecturer. Several Rushville and Rush county people heard him at Winona last summer and were well pleased with his address. It has been several years since Rushville had a Men's Big Meeting and an effort will be made to revive them. Patterson has never spoken in this city and should attract a large crowd.

MONUMENTS!

MONUMENTS!

Our stock of monuments this season surpasses anything we have heretofore carried, embracing a neat selection from the modestly plain to the elaborately carved from model designs. The products from the numerous quarries in the Barre, Vermont, district vary, not alone in color, but also in quality of stock. Who selects yours? J. B. SCHRICHT & Sons

First Lessons in Economy.

When you send the children to our store they will receive the same attention that would be yours. A child should know how to market, and by sending them you are really giving them "first lessons in economy." Send the little ones if you can't come. We'll look out for them.

No Need to Have Your Waist Made

You Will Find It Far More Satisfactory to Make Your Selection from Our Ready to Wear Stock.

You not only save yourself the bother of making them or getting them made, but you will have the added advantage of knowing just how you will look in the garment before you buy it.

We are sure this season's collection of beautiful garments will prove the most attractive this store has ever shown. There are neat low priced waists as well as the more elaborate styles that will appeal to those whose requirements are for more fanciful creations. We are showing waists at every price from
